V. A. NEWS LETTER

A disability incurred while performing extra-hazardous duty in the armed forces during peacetime may make a veteran eligible for the higher rate of service-connected disability compensation from Veterans Administration.

M. L. Stoddard, manager of the Veterans Administration Center, Togus, issued the statement.

Otherwise, he said, VA compensation for a service-connected disability incurred during peacetime is 80 percent of the rate paid for the same disability suffered during wartime.

The law provides that the higher rate is payable for a peacetime disability incurred in "extra-hazardous service, including such service under conditions simulating war," Stoddard explained.

He pointed out that no specific rule can be laid down as to what constitutes extra-hazardous service, adding that VA adjudicates each case on its own merits.

However, Stoddard said, VA may consider service extra-hazardous if it is performed under conditions recognized as exceptionally dangerous, or if it involves risks beyond those ordinarily encountered

Brighter Prospects for Home-Furnishings Field

Few industries felt the impact of last year's recession as much as the home furnishings makers. Tighter pocketbooks and restrained spending by consumers coupled with the retailers' desire to reduce inventories caused a drastic drop in sales and earnings during 1957 and early 1958. Now, after last year's improved second half, manufacturers are looking to the future and forecasting substantially better business. Since mid-1958 consumer spending has turned upward and with retail inventories depleted, the demand for home furnishings is expected to show sustained improvement.

Carpet and Rug Manufacturers
While the demand for carpets has steadily improved since World War II with a pronounced trend towards wall-to-wall carpeting, it has failed to replace the profits previously anticipated. Stimulating this growth has been the rapid population increase, and adequate home reconstruction pace and rising standards of living. A further incentive to sales has been lower retail costs brought about by lower priced raw materials being used in carpet manufacture, such as cotton and rayon.

It would seem from all this that the industry would have been able to show better operating results. However, this has not been the case. During the past year period most of the companies reported severe declines with many freighting reporting double-digit declines. The reasons for this unsatisfactory performance have been the increased competition which has entered the field both through new factories and additional companies entering the industry, and by increased labor costs and electric plants. A further factor has been competition from abroad caused by lower wages rates and low tariffs. The recent recession in the carpet industry reached its bottom during the third quarter of last year. Since that time a market turnaround has occurred. Orders have moved forward due to the renewed retail purchases and also due to depleted inventories at the retail level. Adding the manufacturers were the fact that most of the companies were no longer vested in the New England Manufacturers' Association at the Hotel Kenmore.

"To provide good democratic government requires participation of its citizens. We need to be more concerned about posterity than about prosperity," he added.

Coverly also called for greater evidence of cooperation among the six regional states, especially in the local town and county areas, "both with a view of joint use of facilities and equipment."

The NREX executive pointed out that "we have a small area complicated by our high costs of government. For example, duplication of the three of government at state level" and he deplored the "tendency to think and work independently of one another in New England."

Using an impressive list of regional economic accomplishments, Coverly indicated that there was no reason for New England to be unduly concerned with prosperity. However, that and posterity both might be better served, he said, if there were changes in our "government structure" thereby increasing the flow of cash capital.

BEAUTIFUL FOR SPACIOUS SKIES

Curely, it is no indication of lack of patriotism to suggest that our national anthem is not "perfect." The old English drinking song from which the music is taken is all but impossible to sing. The words, inspiring as they are, leave unsaid many things about our land. In any case, it is a song of war and not of peace.

My own soul is thrilled whenever I hear that other great song, by Katherine Lee Bates:

"O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties

This land of ours has certainly been favored by God with its huge productive farms, and its fruited plains. Even as we are thankful for the fruit of the soil which provides us with material sustenance, even as we should be grateful for the fruit of the mind and soul which brings us spiritual sustenance.

Few poems so symbolize what America stands for so beautifully. We could do worse than to sing it more often. It is encouraging to find that, even in this day of "cold war" that the people of our land are coming to feel a little embarrassed by songs of war, and that

GOOD YEAR AHEAD,

The new year will be a good one, according to the editors of "Changing Times," the Kiplinger Magazine.

There will be high employment, rising pay, lots of new products, near-stable living costs, a construction boom. Federal spending will go up. The public mood will be one of optimism over the business outlook, tempered with uneasiness over the mounting costs of government.

Living costs won't vary significantly through the year, say the editors. You'll find yourself spending less at the supermarket, particularly for pork, poultry, canned fish, fruits and vegetables. But expect more costly furniture, carpets, bedding, shoes, TV sets, big and small appliances. On balance, living costs won't rise much.

Average pay will continue to increase, and millions of workers who lost out on last year's boosts will now get theirs. Overtime, recently a rarity, will be common. Breadwinners will discover that family income goes a little further.

All construction records will be topped, the editors predict. It will be another million-plus house year. The money situation will probably get no worse—builders think they will be able to finance everything they can sell. Prices will edge ahead from current levels, but expect a lot more houses in the $12,000 to $15,000 bracket.

Their hearts go out so unreservedly to the sentiment of a great song of peace, and of thanksgiving to God.

MAN'S RECIPE

BLANCHE'S CHOCOLATE SNAPS

These winter days I think of the big, homely kitchen on the farm in the 1910's. The stovetop wood-burning range was always shining. The battered copper kettle on the second burner sang a pleasant song while the solid maple and oak wood cracked and snapped in the fire box.

Mother had modern stoves later, but she always claimed she could bake better breads, cookies and meats with the woodburner. Here at Sunny Acres we have an electric stove with superheated burners that sound bells, ring cones, whistle and turn things on and off automatically.

I have always said that a girl should pass an examination in the making before entering matrimony. Now I add one other qualification: She should have an engineering degree in order to run a modern stove.

Today's cookie is an easy, crisp and flavorful chocolate affair that Blanche originated. Use one half cup butter or margarine, one and an eighth cups sugar, one egg beaten, two tablespoons corn syrup, two squares chocolate, one half teaspoon vanilla, one and an eighth cups flour, one half teaspoon salt and one half teaspoon soda.

Cream the butter; add the sugar and cream again. Don't scrimp on this for it influences texture and taste. Add the egg, melted chocolate, syrup, vanilla and blend again while you sing a stanza or two of "We'll Be Coming Round the Mountain."

Mix in the flour with the salt and soda and mix all well. Keep by teaspoon on greased sheets. Leave some space for spreading and bake at 350° for about 20 minutes or until done.

COUNTRY FLAVOR

ICE TIME

There are men of dignity and girls who look through office and factory windows these winter days and remember ice cutting time. Family farms that made milk for a city market required several calves a week for the big trough that held the milk cans. Most farm homes had an ice refrigerator in the summer kitchen or back room.

Good farmers wanted clear ice about a foot thick. In the days of buffalo robes, asopstones and kerosene lanterns, farm boys were allowed to take two or three days from school in ice cutting time. After an area on the village pond was scraped, it was "prowed" by a strong horse pulling a plow with a sharp chisel cutter which cut a two to four inch depth.

Then came the hand sawing with a five-foot blade saw. On a scorching day with a biting north wind, it was cold monotonous work. It wasn't hard physical work, for the secret was to let the sharp teeth ride on their own weight. Fathers and uncles, however, felt called upon to join about the effect of low temperature on a boy's activity, for a lad quickly learned that it was better to keep working.

After the cakes were cut out, they were pushed through a channel of dark water to the pond's shore. In cold temperature, the cakes dried quickly and were stacked, waiting to be hauled to the farm. Layer by layer, the old weather-beaten technicians were filled. Sawdust was packed around the edges and Father wanted a thin layer sprinkled between the layers so the cakes would pry out easier in the summer.

It was cold work, but it was good to get out of school and fun to work in a group. Father always said, "Now, that will take care of

TODAY'S Meditation

Thursday, January 29

Read Mark 1:5-15.

God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it. (I Corinthians 10:13.)

ONE day a boy came to me with a problem. He was inclined to indulge in some pleasure, but there had been planned a spiritual retreat that would conflict. He realized he would have to choose one or the other. We talked it over, and I pointed out the path he ought to choose, but told him he would have to make the decision.

During the week he called me on the telephone and said he had decided in favor of the spiritual retreat. He had won a victory. We are often tempted, but we remember that Jesus, too, was tempted of Satan, tempted as we are. Now He sits at the right hand of God to intercede for us that we may be able in His strength to withstand temptations. He knows our weakness and offers us strength to resist temptation.

To be obedient to God means setting aside every desire of lust and self. It means avoiding infection that would, if permitted, ultimately destroy the soul.

PRAYER: Our Father, give unto us unshakable faith. Give us strength to overcome evil and wisdom to live victoriously through faith in the atoning power of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. In His name. Amen.

Thought For The Day
The power of God through Christ is sufficient for our every need.

Edward Little Wins Own Winter Carnival

Winner of its own two day winter carnival January 22 and 23 was Edward Little High School of Auburn. Individual winners were Jim Elliott of Rumford in the jumping and Johnny Bower of E. L. in cross-country. Bower, a four event skier, won the skimeter title with a total of 294.74 points. He was first in cross-country, second in jumping and slalom, and fourth in downhill.

Rumford made a good showing, ending in second place. Kenneth came in third. Gould overcame a poor start to finish fourth, then Farmington, Berlin, N. H. and Fryeburg. Ice conditions made for fast competition and results.

Donald Angewine gave Bower very close competition in cross-country, a three mile trail, coming in second with a time of 20 minutes 52 seconds. Fast conditions prevailed in jumping as Bower and Elliott reached the 71 foot mark. Each jumper jumped three times, the best two scoring. Bower fell on the first, 70 on the second, and 71 on the third. Elliott jumped 71, 70, 71 and had the edge in style.

Edward Little won events as a team. Rumford was second in jumping and Gould third. Gould was second in cross-country. Gould had had luck as three men originally listed as disqualified gave them 34.51 in the Friday slalom. Some question on one of the disqualifications existed and meet officials allowed the racer's time to count, boosting Gould's total to 54.00, but it still ended Friday's events in last place. A 60 plus showing in Saturday's events helped raise them to fourth.
